The DCM tradition was born. A key to the success of DCM over the years has been the ability to meet the needs of the listeners. It's easy to make a great speaker if money is no object. It's much more difficult, to make great sounding speakers affordable. That driving philosophy continues in today's DCM speakers.

The DCM line is a budget line of speakers with a real great 10 year replacement driver warranty.

With out getting into to much detail, the entire line (at least to my ear) is heavy on the bass end and lacks detail and imaging. I find the low end to be muddy and without to much definition on all of the models you have mentioned.
