sociologist Émile Durkheim is a classic text in sociology that is widely taught to psychology students. Published in 1897, the book was the first to present a sociological study of suicide, and its conclusion that suicide can have origins in social causes rather than just being due to individual temperament was groundbreaking at the time.

Durkheim's study of suicide gave birth to sociology. He wrote in the late 19th century using a positivist belief system that society can be studied as a science, and be observed and studied just as we do when studying the natural world. Durkheim wanted to show that suicide was linked to society, and then the value of sociology could be established.
