Old English Poetry: One of the distinguishing features of the verse structure of Old English poetry is the almost complete absence of rhyme. During the 700 years of the Old English period, only one poem is known to have been written in rhyme, the poem called "The Rhyming Poem". Rhyme was introduced in English poetry later under the influence of Christian hymns in Latin.

Poetry & Prose/sad poetry (by Various)

OLD ENGLISH PROSE Prose developed later than poetry - in the ninth century - but sometimes it also partly contained the characteristics of poetry. It was influenced by Latin, the language of the church and the educated. It consisted of factual, historical, and religious writings.

Old English Literature (500-1100)

Virtually all Old English poetry is written in a single metre, a four-stress line with a syntactical break, or caesura, between the second and third stresses, and with alliteration linking the two halves of the line; this pattern is occasionally varied by six-stress lines. The poetry is formulaic, drawing on a common set of stock phrases and phrase patterns, applying standard epithets to various classes of characters, and depicting scenery with such recurring images as the eagle and the wolf ...

English literature - The Old English period | Britannica

Old English literature, or Anglo-Saxon literature, encompasses literature written in Old English, in Anglo-Saxon England from the 7th century to the decades after the Norman Conquest of 1066. "Cædmon's Hymn", composed in the 7th century, according to Bede, is often considered as the oldest surviving poem in English. Poetry written in the mid-12th century represents some of the latest post-Norman examples of Old English; for example, The Soul's Address to the Body found in Worcester ...
