The Fire was the fourth book in the Hurricane series by Rj Prescott. There were so many facets to this story that it was a hard review to organize. First, I loved Tommy. He was the funny, flirty man whore in all the previous books and you couldn't help but adore him. He was all that and more (minus the man whore) in The Fire.

R.J. Prescott created an entire brood of hot, Irish boxers (and their friends) that you just want to keep reading about. I do recommend reading The Hurricane and The Aftermath (at least book one) if you think you want to read the whole series. You'll get some good background info on Kieran and his lucky lady, Marie. Marie is such a sweet heroine.

The Hurricane - R.J. Prescott

The Hurricane by R J Prescott has an excellent plot and is very well written. The author takes the time to weave an interesting narrative from start to finish and she creates great imagery, at the same time. She makes you care about the characters, their struggles, their pain, their relationships and their successes. I highly recommended it.
